These items will be shown to you by the finance (or business) manager after you've agreed to purchase the vehicle. Many dealers make a good portion of their profit selling these add-ons (such as extended warranties, service plans, gap insurance, and paint/fabric protection). There are only a few add-ons that you should consider purchasing - all the rest are pretty much useless. The ones worth considering are: Extended Warranties GAP Insurance The following may be worthwhile for some, but not most: Pre-paid Maintenance Plans Wheel Protection Low-Jack Anti-theft device The following are completely useless: Paint Protection Fabric Protection Rust-proofing Window Etching Car Alarms The key to getting the best deal is to gather price or lease bids from as many local dealers as possible. Then shop that best price around until no one can beat it. Here are the steps: Select the vehicle you're interested in to see if there are local dealers in my network who will provide you with their best upfront price. You will get direct access to an internet sales manager who you can further negotiate with online (no need to visit dealership). Select Vehicle to Get Local Pricing TrueCar, and CarsDirect are my top 2 online price quote recommendations. These services show you pre-negotiated prices from dealers closest to you - and the deals are usually pretty decent. But remember, you can still negotiate further. Follow this up with my checklist to make sure you squeeze out every last bit of savings. - Gregg Fidan Gregg Fidan is the founder of RealCarTips. When you want to buy a new or used Freightliner truck, or you need parts and service, you can use tools on the Freightliner website to find the nearest dealer. You can also sometimes get connected to a dealership through your chosen lending agency, according to Daimler Truck Financial. Freightliner Website Geolocation Tool One of the fastest ways to connect with your nearest Freightliner USA dealerships is by using the geolocation tool on the company's website. When you go to the dealer search page on the Freightliner site, it asks permission to use your location. It then shows you all the dealerships in your area, pinned on a map of your state. The names of the dealerships are shown on the side of the page, along with addresses, phone number, their distance from your current location stated in miles and the services they provide. You can also click the view details button under the dealership's name and address to get more information about it. Enter an Address on the Freightliner Website Another way to use the dealer search page on the Freightliner website is to enter your address in the search bar and then click the search button. This generates results based on your location, and if you want to find a dealership that offers a specific service, such as trucks for sale, Freightliner puts icons under each listing in the results so you can click on one that provides the specific function you need. By State on the Freightliner Website The third way the Freightliner site offers for finding dealerships is navigating to a specific state. To do this, on the dealer search page, click the browse by state icon under the search bar. This generates a page that lists the states, and you then click your chosen state. For example, if you select Alaska, you get results that show the two dealerships that are located in Alaska, as of 2019. Names, phone numbers and addresses are provided so you can easily contact the one you prefer. Narrow Results on Freightliner Website by the Service You Need The fourth and final way to use the Freightliner website to find the nearest dealership is to narrow your search according to the reason you're looking for a Freightliner dealership. The icons to use this function are found just below the map image. You can select sales, service, parts, elite service, Pinnacle truck parts and fleet solutions or dealerships that have a TA/Petro service point. Through Your Chosen Lender In some cases, the lender you choose to seek loan preapproval with may offer a connection to a Freightliner dealer, as shown on the Daimler Truck Financing website. Using the Daimler Truck Financial website as an example, they offer a brief description of the Freightliner company followed by a link that connects to the dealer search page on the Freightliner website.
